

CRACKER CAPRICE IS A REAL FRILL SEEKER

 BLONDE bombshell Caprice was giving women advice on how to 'lift and separate' as she unveiled her new line of lingerie in Dublin yesterday.

The American model spent three hours in Arnotts launching her range of frillies on the Irish public.

 But the 38-year-old beauty's visit to Dublin was not all pleasure.

On Friday night she met her Irish lawyer Peter Lennon with regard to a legal action she is planning here over claims that she lied about being crowned Miss Teen California in 1989.

 But our exclusive picture here proves the beauty did walk away with the catwalk title.

 Meanwhile Hush Hush can also reveal that the beautiful blonde has got a new man in tow – and, at 34, David Sonnethal could be described as something of a toy boy.

He is in the right business for a recession as he is the owner of Bond Street Pawnbrokers in London city centre and met Caprice in Marbella just over a month ago.

 Sadly, David could not be at Caprice's side when she flew to Dublin on Friday afternoon and appeared on RTE One's The Daily Show at tea time.

The model's friend and agent Tara Sinnott from Red Carpet said the star was excited to be launching her lingerie line in Arnotts and will be back in Dublin again in November.